Thinking Out Loud

Elmer Stevens, Grass Valley High School English instructor and student of Nevada County history, has uncovered interesting data on the colorful mining history of the Grass Valley-Nevada City section.

Stevens said the Gold Hill Mine, founded when George McKnight stumbed against an outcropping while chasing his cow, produced $1,500,000, during the first six months of its existence and more than $4,000,000 taken out the first year.

"Placer miners from Sacramento came in great numbers but the new type of mining was hard going," Stevens says. "It was something never carried on before. Seeing the difficulty, General Freemont, the Pathfinder, sent to Cornwall, England, for miners who were well acquainted with deep mining in their native tin mines.

"With them they brought not only their mining technique but their customs, many of which survive in Nevada County today.

The year of the founding of the Gold Hill Mine was 1850.

"In the same year," Stevens states, "the great Empire Mine was founded by George Roberts and it has been in continuous production ever since. In 1869 William Bourne, Sr., purchased the Empire and at his death, in 1878, William Bourne, Jr., left Oxford and came home to take over his father's interests. With the aid of C. F. Fargo he made it the deepest gold mine in the world."

Stevens' research has revealed from 1880 to 1940 Nevada County boasted of a production of $250,000,000 in gold. Since the shutdown of hydraulicking the production of gold has been principally through quartz mining.

Interesting data on the Idaho-Maryland Mine, last year the state's leading gold producer, has been uncovered by Stevens.

"The romantic Eureka, later known as the Idaho," Stevens says, "was discovered as a quartz mine in 1852 and worked for 12 years with varying degrees of success unti it became the property of Fricot and Company to be the richest mine in the world.

"The Russ Building and the cable car lines in San Francisco were built from its gold.

"Reports written by experts in the 1870's indicate that a mine operating on such a big scale could not last much longer.

"Of course,' wrote one engineer 'in a mine that has been worked so extensively and for so long a time, much of the ground is worked out; all quartz is taken out as the stopes are carried forward and pillars of blocks of quartz are left standing'

"However," Stevens continues, "the Idaho with the North Star and Empire continued until a fire originating in the lower levels broke out and the mine was closed for a number of years.

"In 1920 the property was acquired by Buckley Wells famed mining promoter, who worked it until low grade ore forced him to quit. Despondent, Wells took his own life in San Francisco."

Subsequently, the Idaho-Maryland was taken over by Errol MacBoyle. Perserverance, good judgment and just plain luck finally brought the property to its own and besides turning millions of dollars in gold into the treasury each month, MacBoyle's mines give employment to nearly 900 men.

The information from the research of Stevens' reveals Nevada County has had its up and downs.

Right now, the county is experiencing one of its "down" periods. Skilled miners are hard to get. Operators are finding it difficult, because of higher costs, to mine ore which formerly had been profitable.

The mining industry in the county may drop to a lower point, as far as production and employment is concerned, than at present, but from the past history of the county and from the observations of eminent gold authorities, we believe the eventual comeback will boost the county to a new height of glory.

Mines In County Now Employ 2400, With Payroll Of $360,000.00

Nevada County has now 2,400 men employed in its mining industry. The total payroll per month is approximately $360,000.

Although the figures are two hundred men short of the peak over enjoyed prior to the national defense boom, it is an advancement over the month of October. In October, The Nugget's survey showed there were 2,314 men at work in the gold mines of the county with a payroll approximating $347,100.

Probably the most important news of the month to Nevada Cityans was the start of operations at the Midnight Mine by Raymond I. Smith, proprietor of Harold's Club of Reno, The Midnight at present is the only operating mine within the city limit.

On November 1st, the Innis dredge at the Malakoff diggings near North Bloomfield began working. The dredge will handle 60,000 yards of gravel per month.

The Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation payroll increased somewhat at both the New Brunswick and Idaho-Maryland properties.

In the gravel field, the Omega Hydraulic Mine continues to set the pace in the number of men employed. The Omega has 35 men on the payrol and has had that number since the shutdown of actual operations last July because of the lack of water. The men have been employed at the sawmill and in building flumes and ditches in preparation for the resumption of operations next month.

The mines in operation in the county number of men employed and payroll, follows:

Development Under Way At Midnight

An extensive development is contemplated for the Midnight Mine, which was recently reopened by Raymond I. Smith, of Reno, Nev., proprietor of Harold's Club of that city.

Lawrence Smith of this city is superintendent of the Midnight which is the only operating property located within the limit of Nevada City. The Midnight is situated on the south side of Deer Creek below the Miners Foundry.

The Midnight shaft has been dewatered and the vein exposed. Reports indicate that the ore carries remarkable values and both Raymond I. Smith and Superintendent Smith are pleased with the showing.

Raymond I. Smith has mining interests elsewhere in California and Nevada and appears to be enthused with his property here.

Smith intends to give the Midnight a fair chance to prove itself and for that reason the extensive development program has been planned.

At the present time the crews are drifting on the vein. Superintendent Smith reports the timbers in the old shaft are still in good condition. Two electric pumps have been placed at the mine and are capably handling the water.

It is the belief of Superintendent Smith that the reason the mine was abandoned in the early days was because of the excessive water. Modern pumps can easily handle the water flow now.

The Midnight shaft is on the incline and is 180 feet in depth. Raymond I. Smith occasionally comes to Nevada City to inspect the progress at the Midnight.

LOCAL FOOTBALL SQUAD LOSES TO GRASS VALLEY

The Nevada City Elmentary School lost a 27 to 6 football game to the Grass Valley Hennessy School in Grass Valley last Thursday afternoon.

The Grass Valley victory evened the series between the two teams at two wins each.

Richard Haley snared a pass to give the Nevada City eleven its only score.

Anna M. Rowe Seeks Divorce From F. Rowe

Mrs. Anna M. Rowe, wife of County Supervisor Frank Rowe, has filed a suit for divorce in the superior court here.

The complaint charges the supervisor, representing the Grass Valley district, caused the plaintiff "grevious mental anguish and physical suffering" for the past two years.

Mrs. Rowe asks a fair division of the community property, which is listed as a home on Maiden Lane valued at $2500; household furnishings valued at $1,000 and two cars, valued at $300 and $350.

The plaintiff sets forth Rowe earns $200 per month as a member of the board of supervisors and asks $100 per month for the support of herself and the couple's three children, aged 20, 18 and 16. Custody of the children is also asked by the plaintiff.

The couple married in Sacramento on July 9, 1920 and separated October 11 of this year.

EPISCOPAL AND METHODIST CHURCHES JOIN SERVICES ON THANKSGIVING DAY

The Right Reverend Noel Porter, D. D., Ph. D., Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Sacramento, will be the special preacher at the community Thanksgiving service to be held Wednesday evening at 7 p. m. in the Methodist church.

This united service, held in alternate years at the Episcopal and the Methodist churches, is open to members of all denominations—an opportunity for all members of Nevada City to join together in one great, common service of Thanksgiving for the manifold blessings bestowed upon all the citizens of the United States.

Reverend David Ralston, pastor of the Methodist church which is the host for this year's service, has arranged a fine spiritual program for this occasion. Cedric S. Porter of Trinity Episcopal Church will take part in the service.

Bishop Porter's sermon topic will be, "The Five Grains of Corn." It is indeed a privilege for Nevada City to have this prominent churchman with us for this Thanksgiving service, and a large attendance is expected next Wednesday evening.

THANKSGIVING THOUGHT

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day, anno domini, F. D. R. There is much to be thankful for. We need this year particularly to remember our "mercies.' The future is clouded and obscure. Human suffering the world around mounts steadily. The war approaches us on both sides of our world. Already we are near enough to see the red glare in the sky. But for this moment, November 20, 1941, let us be thankful:

That we shall eat our Thanksgiving dinner in peace and that we enjoy an abundance that no other country on earth enjoys.

That but a very few of us thus far suffer the bereavements that millions of other people suffer throughout the world.

That our children are not slowly dying of starvation.

That our soldiers and sailors are being trained to higher skills, are better paid, better fed, better clothed than any other military force the world around.

That if it comes to war in which our boys are engaged on sea, land and in the air, we will have equipped them with the best weapons that money can buy and human intelligence devise.

That as each day passes without direct clash with enemies that seek to dominate our country along with the rest of the world, we can be thankful for that day's grace.

That while we give thanks for these mercies, we also give thanks for public sentiment which is slowly becoming unanimous that there are worse evils than war.

That oppression of peoples, restrictions of liberties, forced labor, and all acts of violence, have at length aroused the United States to recognize their menace.

That those freedoms, for which this nation has repeatedly fought, will again be defended if our right to them is challenged.

Police Force, Except Chief Solaro, Resigns At Council's Request

THE CITY COUNCIL MET SATURDAY EVENING IN EXECUTIVE SESSION AT THE CITY HALL TO CONSIDER A RESIGNATION TURNED IN BY CHIEF OF POLICE MAX SOLARO.

When the clerk, George Calanan, had read the resignation, Councilman John Ivey quickly moved that it be accepted. Councilman Frank Davies seconded the motion. It was put to a vote. Davies and Ivey voted to accept, but Mayor Ben Hall, Seaman and Nye voted to reject it.

The three policemen, Al Sommers, Lynn Davies, son of the Councilman Davies, and Cliff Bonivert were called in and asked if they were going to be able to work for Chief Solaro. They said "No."

Mayor Hall then said: "In that event it will be necessary to ask for your resignations."

None of the three said anything for quite awhile. The mayor after a pause; resumed: "In case you don't resign it will be necessary to put you off the force."

Then one of the three asked: "Could we have a few minutes to talk this thing over?" The mayor said: "Certainly," They went out in the hall, talked it over and came back and resigned.

That in brief is the report of Mayor Hall following the meeting, of what occurred.

Prior to the voting, however, it developes, that Councilman Ivey cross-examined Police Chief Solaro at some length, apparently trying to verify some story he had heard derogatory to Solaro's character. At one time he exclaimed to Solaro: "You're a damned liar."

Mayor Hall immediately called Ivey to order and Ivey apoligized.

The immediate cause of Solaro's resignation was an altercation with Policemen Davies and Sommers, concerning their conduct as police officers. Solaro insisted that they observe proper discipline in carrying out their duties. Both officers, according to Solaro, assumed an attitude of resentment.

Feeling that he could no longer serve the city, if compelled to put up with the conduct complained of, Solaro stated, he had resigned.

The moment the news of his resignation reached Councilman Ivey and Davies, they called on the mayor at his home, and then and there, demanded that the resignation be accepted. The mayor refused. He stated this was a matter for consideration of all five members of the city council. The meeting was accordingly set for Saturday night.

CHAMBER, V.F.W. TO MEET HERE

A large attendance from both organizations is expected at the meeting.

Scores Attend Final Rites For Alfred J. Heether, Lumberman

Scores of friends yesterday afternoon paid their last respects to Alfred J. Heether, 55, Camptonville lumberman and former Nevada City truckman, who was killed while unloading logs at his sawmill late Thursday.

The final rites were held at the Holmes Funeral Home here with the local Masonic Lodge conducting the services. Burial was in the Masonic Cemetery.

The untimely death of Heether caused much sorrow and regret in Nevada and Yuba Counties, where he was widely known. Heether formerly lived in Nevada City and since he entered the lumber business in Camptonville hardly a day passed that he was not a visitor in this city.

The death of the prominent lumberman at this time was particuarly unforunate because he was enjoying a period of prosperity after many lean years of hard struggle.

Just prior to his death Heether remarked that in a year or two he would be able to retire on the profits from an excellent contract with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, supplying lumber for the power firm's tunnel project at Dutch Flat and from other contracts.

About two years ago Heether purchased the interest in the lumber company of William Grant, with whom he started in business.

Prior to entering the lumber business, Heether was connected with the trucking firm of Lobdell and Heether in Nevada City and Grass Valley. Heether was a native of Michigan. He came to California in 1913 and shortly thereafter moved to this county. He was the husband of Ethel Heether.

BUILDING INDUSTRY AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

Donald Nelson, head of SPAB has recently retracted the statement that all building must stop and in view of the following facts it seems that it is a wise decision to continue the home building program.

First, the building industry is the second largest, surpassed only by agriculture. It employs seven million directly and about eight million more are employed in closely related industries that depend heavily upon building for their existence. Thus to stop building completely would cause serious unemployment and severe damage to our economy, and this in turn would be detrimental to the health, welfare, and morale of our people.

Second, home building requires a very insignificant amount of critical materials. Government statistics show that to build 600,000 homes costing $6000 each would require only 1.3 per cent of the available steel, 2.5 per cent of the available zinc. 4.3 per cent of the available copper, and 5 to 10 per cent of the available lead. Substitutes can further reduce these amounts, and the fact that homes average less than $6000 will require even less material. Then, too, the largest percentage of metal required is that of lead, and in placing it under priority last week SPAB announced, "no shortage is anticipated in this product." Thus it would seem that home building can continue without injury to the defense program.

Third we are informed that about 15 per cent of our national production is now devoted to defense. it will not be over 25 per cent next year. and it will be 1943 before 50 per cent of our production can be shifted to defense work. Heavy curtailment of all-metal consumer products should readily meet the present needs of defense and there is nothing to be gained in shutting down the building industry that uses a small amount of critical materials in order to accumulate them for use at a much later date.

We may all be thankful that the local dealers in building materials can secure a priority rating and will continue to meet the home building needs of our community.

NEW SYSTEM FOR PHYSICAL TESTS OF SELECTEES

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 17.—A new system of physical examination for selective service registrants, designed to protect the registrant and to eliminate induction station rejections by having advanced physical check ups made by army doctors, will begin in California on November 24, it was announced today by Brig. Gen. Joseph O. Donovan, state director of selective service. He stated that registrants previously selected for induction during the period November 12 to December 5 wil be physically examined and inducted according to previously existing procedure.

Under the new plan to be initiated immediately, registrants will be directed to centers where regular army examining teams will conduct a combined primary and final physical examination. Registrants following examinations, will be returned to their homes through their local boards which will be advised of army board findings.

In event army physical examinations are passed, and barring new medical developments, Class 1-A selectees will be called to report directly to reception centers within approximately sixty days after the army physical examination.

This revised induction procedure eliminates the former necessity for complete physical examination by civilian medicos. Local board physicians will be required to make only a simple physical inspection of registrants.

General Donovan pointed out that such procedure of physical examinations assures a registrant almost certain induction upon delivery to army centers and to the greatest degree possible removes the former possible hardship of a registrant passing his initial board test only to be turned down by army examiners after he has severed civilian ties.

Examining center for Nevada County registrants will be in Marysville. The expense of the trip will be borne by the war department.

It is pointed out that National Headquarters of the Selective Service System in Washington, working in collaboration with the American Medical Association, is giving serious consideration to a rehabilitation program. Work of conducting this program, State Headquarters indicated, would largely fall upon the shoulders of the local board examiners who, under the present rehabilitation program plan, would operate on a paid basis.

The principal advantage of the advanced physical examination by army doctors is that registrants will know for a certainty that if they pass the army examining centers, they will be inducted into the armed forces. Such a plan is likewise expected to be of benefit to the registrant inasmuch as time allotted between physical examination and induction date can be used in closing business and personal affairs.

Traffic safety, says the Department of Motor Vehicles, is a good bit what Mark Twain said about the weather —everybody talks about it but nobody ever does anything about it.

One of the little anomalies of history is that Paul Revere did the whole stretch of his famous ride without hitting a single pedestrian.

Nature has her compensations. For example every bull has horns but the Department of Motor Vehicles has no record of any bull ever tooting a horn at the curb to keep a date.

EMPLOYMENT STEADILY RISES AT I.-M. MINES

The Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation payroll has increased to 878, the highest it has been since the strike of last May.

The total, however, is approximately 100 less than the number employed prior to the strike.

Of the 878, 12 are employed at the Bullion Mine. Work is still continuing on the surface plant at the New Brunswick Mine. The New Brunswick mill will remain idle until the surface equipment installation is completed.

Of good news to Idaho-Maryland Mines Corporation employees and his many friends in the county, was the return to work on a part time basis of Albert Crase, I.-M. general manager. Crase had been seriously ill for several months. He is now able to work at the office for several hours per day.

Consistency certainly becomes a rare jewel when you see motorists with Safety First windshield stickers doing 75.

RECENT VISITOR IMPRESSED WITH LOCAL BEAUTY

Elsie Lower Pomeroy of Riverside, a recent visitor in Nevada City, was impressed with the beauty of this locality, the friendliness of the people and the plentifullness of painting subjects. Mrs Pomeroy's hobby is painting.

The prominent Riverside matron wrote to Mrs. B. C. Goldsmith here, promising another visit to Nevada City.

"You do indeed live in a beautiful locality," writes Mrs. Pomeroy, "with plenty of painting subjects. I am already wishing I had stayed longer."

Mrs. Pomeroy was interested in the fire house on Commercial and Main Streets. This is the same fire house which had not long ago been doomed to destruction by the Nevada City council but the razing of which has not yet started.

Mrs. Pomeroy has requested from Mrs. Goldsmith a photograph of the firehouse so she can make a pencil sketch of it.

While here Mrs. Pomeroy met Mrs. Ella Austin, retired county superintendent of schools and well known for her paintings. In the letter to Mrs. Goldsmith, Mrs. Pomeroy said: "I did enjoy Mrs. Austin so much. She is very interesting. When you come down bring her with you and let her visit me. We might all go painting together."

Dr. Bernard Hummelt Gives Diphtheria Treatment To Nearly 400 Children

Nearly 400 local children were immunized for diphtheria at the Elmentary School here Friday by Dr. Bernard Hummelt.

Many of the children immunized were of pre school age.

Dr. Hummelt was assisted in the work by Mrs. Isabel Hefelfinger district school nurse, Miss Frances Klink, Red Cross nurse, Miss Laura Loucks, county rural nurse, and Mrs. Dorothy Gwin, Mrs. L. G. Iageson, Mrs. Warren Brown, Mrs. Helen Berger, Mrs. Morton White and Mrs. Beth Wilson of the Elementary Parent Teachers Association.

The PTA will announce later the exact date for the second treatment. It will be in about two weeks.

SEEKS HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

Martha Louise Willey has filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the superior court here, seeking to compel her former husband, Alfred Perry Meliza, to return to her the couple's two year old child

The petition sets forth that Mrs. Willey obtained a divorce last July in Reno, Nev., and on August 26th the decree was modified whereby the sole care and custody of the child was awarded to the mother. The petition states that respondent is detaining the child unlawfully at Sheepranch, Calaveras County.

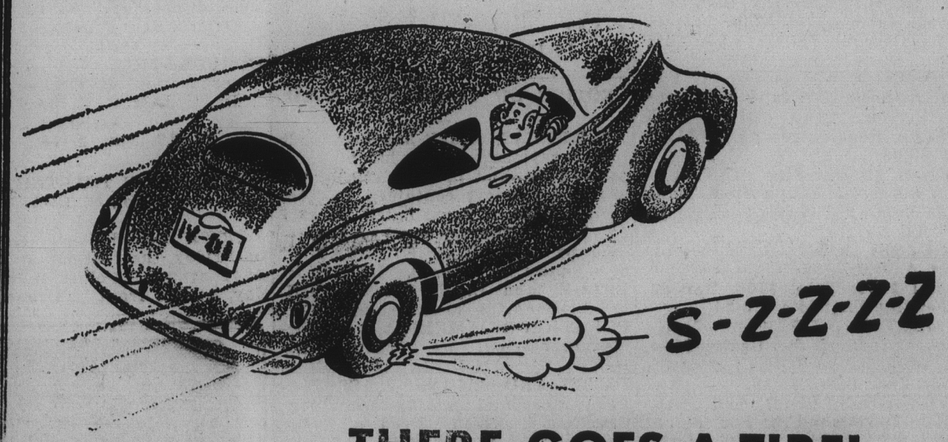
THE RECORD.... Facts That Concern You — No. 33 of a Series



THERE GOES A TIRE!
...but why junk the car?

Any car can have a blowout in a tire. But you wouldn't junk the car. You'd just fix the tire—or replace it.

That's very much like a situation that exists in the retailing of beer. Beer retailing has its "flat tires," too—retailers who disobey the law or who permit unsavory conditions.

To protect your right to drink good beer, we of the beer industry want to eliminate the few "flat tire" retailers. Here's another reason: Right here in California, beer has provided employment for 102,698 persons supports, an annual payroll of $90,386,601 and paid $2,186,489.99 in state taxes last year.

The state, too, has an important stake in the beer industry's purchases—for material, equipment and services—from more than 100 other industries.

Those benefits are worth preserving. You can help us preserve them by patronizing only the reputable and legal places where beer is sold and by reporting any law violations you may observe to the duly constituted authorities.

REJOICING OVER $10,000 FUND FOR ROAD WORK

Nevada City Chamber of Commerce has just cause for rejoicing with the announcement the state highway commission has appropriated $10,000 for the improving of the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway in Bear Valley.

The project has been the local chamber's "pet" and at each meeting of the highway commission, a delegation of local chamber members urged the appropriation of funds for the improvement of the road.

Spokesmen for the local booster organization had good talking points for an appropriation to improve the highway. Many wrecks and injuries occurred during the past two years due to the bad condition of the road.

The $10,000 is believed more than ample for eliminating the bad sections of the highway. It is not known here when the improvement work will start.

Mining Of Baryte Ore At Spanish Mine Soon To Draw To Close

The mining of baryte ore at the Spanish Mine is about to draw to a close.

Some of the miners have already left and report operations are to cease with the winter months coming on and the shortage of available No. 1 baryte ore.

The trucks haul the baryte to Modesto, where it is treated and used for various purposes. One of the chief usages of baryte is in paint as a substitute for lead.

The Spanish, owned by the Bradley interests, had a 60,000 ton contract for the baryte. It was reported here there are still 14 men working at the mine.

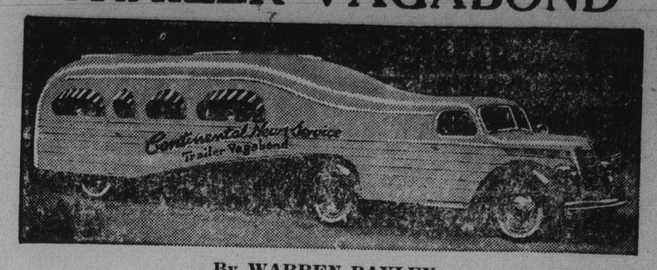
TRAILER VAGABOND



By WARREN BAYLEY

This feature appears through the courtesy of O. K. Tire Weld Co. G. R. (Red) Jarrard, Hills Flat, Grass Valley, California.

Klamath Falls, Oregon.

The shortest natural river in the world lies entirely within this town. Less than one mile in length, Link River connects the sizable Upper Klamath Lake with smaller Lake Ewauna, fronting the town's main business district all the way. Its grey-blue waters then become the Klamath River and head into California for a trip to the sea.

This town grew up along the short length of Link River, the first settlement being made soon after the Klamath Indians were finally subdued by federal troops in 1864. First named Linkville, it rapidly became the center of a large sheep and cattle raising industry that still thrives today. Cattle rustling paid huge dividends in those days and one entire local family engaged in that practice for many years until completely wiped out by straight shooting ranchers.

Growth was slow for the town, still little more than a village in 1893, when its name was changed to Klamath Falls. With the coming of the railroad at the turn of the century, however, things began to pick up. Between 1915 and 1930 the local population increased six fold and now numbers over 16,000 not counting the thousands of awkward, white pelicans who flap their way in from the Pacific every March and remain on the town's two lakes and Link River until late fall. Many still linger now, nesting in the reeds along the shores of Upper Klamath Lake, a body of water made famous by E. H. Harriman, who called it the most beautiful spot in the west and built an elaborate lodge on the shores of Pelican Bay from which to enjoy it.

So much a part of local color are these summer, feathered visitors that scores of the town's athletic and social organizations are named after the pelican, as well as a theatre and a hotel.

Although agriculture is a big thing around here with two thirds of the Klamath Basin's 300,000 fertile acres under irrigation, the town is more of an industrial center of south central Oregon. 28 sawmills are scattered in and around Klamath Falls itself, annually cutting 350,000,000 feet of lumber. At one of the large local factories that make this the largest box manufacturing district in the U. S. A. we witnessed the fate of a log from the time it was yanked out of the water until it emerged at the other end of the factory as neatly stacked wooden boxes. The 30,000,000,000 feet of pine timber standing in the forests of the neighboring Cascade Range will keep this business going a long, long while..... ....

In spite of the town's very modern and neat appearance—largely due to growth and building that began only twenty five years ago—the old and new west still rub elbows here. The ranchers and farmers from out of town Indians from the reservation and loggers from the woods mingle with city folks.

At this time the sereets along the banks of Link River are alive with the activity of a town spending a bi-monthly, million dollar pay roll. If the present rate of growth continues that pay roll and Klamath Falls population will be doubled many times in the near future. But nothing can increase the size of the town's river. It will still be the shortest in the world when Klamath Falls has grown into a teeming metropolis.
